

Bill Carter Award-Winning Author, Filmmaker; Journalist & Activist

In Nov. 2013 Bill Carter won the Arizona/New Mexico book award for "Boom, Bust, Boom" – the latest accomplishment for an award-winning filmmaker (Miss Sarajevo) and journalist with pieces published in Gear, Rolling Stone, Spin and Men's Journal magazines, among others. His humanitarian efforts and work with Bono and U2 helped bring international attention to the Bosnian War, earning him official citizenship recognition to Bosnia's capitol city of Sarajevo in 2009.

Previous speaking engagements include: Stanford, Harvard, Columbia, Seton Hall, The University of Washington, Portland State, Clark College, Pacific University & more. Areas of focus related to "Boom Bust, Boom" include the environmental, social, technical and humanist implications of copper mining, and other specialties include: Bosnia, Humanitarianism, film, writing, media, multiculturalism, East European studies.

"Bill Carter was a pleasure to host. He was very attentive to students, and they responded well to both his lecture and to his generous sharing of time and information prior to the engagement. Both they and I now want to go to all the places Bill so vividly described. I'd recommend him as a good addition to any campus speaker's series."

- Serni Solidarios, University of Puget Sound

"THE POWER OF ART IN CONFLICT: U2, BONO & MISS SARAJEVO."

Bill Carter is the award-winning director of the documentary film "Miss Sarajevo" - a film made in collaboration with U2 and shot from within the besieged city of Sarajevo where Carter hand-delivered aid during the Bosnian War. Bono produced the film, and teamed up with Brian Eno and Pavarotti to record and sing the famous theme song of the same title.

TYPICAL SPEAKING ENGAGEMENT.

Mr. Carter will show his film "Miss Sarajevo" and will speak about his experiences in Bosnia. He'll explain the complex multiculturalism of Bosnia's capitol city of Sarajevo, and share the amazing transformation that took place as he fell in love with the Bosnian people, and risked his life to deliver aid - eventually calling upon the greatest rock band in the world to bring international attention to the conflict. Reading from "Fools Rush In", shortlisted by the BBC as one of the top books of 2005, his inspirational story is at times chilling, inspiring and laugh-out-loud funny. Most importantly, he demonstrates what tremendous change can occur from sheer will and inspiration - even if you are 26, broke and living in a war zone. His story has been covered in Rolling Stone, The New York Times, The Washington Post, The Chicago Sun Times and more. If he could help end the Bosnian War with $100 in the toe of his boot, what can you do?

For more, please visit: <http://www.billcarter.cc>

"COPPER: THE METAL THAT RUNS THE WORLD."

In following the time-honored journalistic tenet that the best stories are the ones you find in your own backyard, Bill Carter begins this account of the all-pervasive presence of copper in our lives and its cost on our health, economy, and our environment with a simple personal discovery: the presence of arsenic from leftover mine tailings in his backyard garden in the former copper mining town of Bisbee, Arizona. This revelation led him on a quest to find out as much as possible about the mineral copper, its wonderful and mysterious properties, its history in human evolution, and its omnipresence in contemporary life, being found in everything from toothpaste to cellphones.

TYPICAL SPEAKING ENGAGEMENT.

Carter explores several mining areas, past, present, and projected both in the United States and around the world, and details the environmental and health implications involved in open-surface extraction of copper ore. From boardrooms of investors in London to the mountains of Indonesia, Carter connects the dots from his humble backyard garden to the CEOs of the multibillion-dollar global copper industry, confronting a resource that is so vital yet which has the potential to cause horrendous and irrevocable damage to our planet and ourselves.

For more, please visit: www.boombustboombook.com

Bill Carter Award-Winning Author, Filmmaker; Journalist & Activist

RECENT UNIVERSITY SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS INCLUDE:

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY

UNIVERSITY of
PUGET SOUND
Est. 1888

Harvard
University

STANFORD
UNIVERSITY

Portland State
UNIVERSITY

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

RECENT NON-PROFIT SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS & PARTNERS INCLUDE:

Alaska
Conservation
Foundation

"In Minnesota, people working to protect Minnesota's water from pollution by proposed copper-nickel, or sulfide mines, have found Bill Carter's "Boom, Bust, Boom" to be a valuable resource. His presentations informed our members and others across the state about his personal experience and investigation into the copper mining industry. I recommend him as a speaker for any group addressing a proposal to build a copper mine in their community or near an area they cherish."

- Paul Danicic, Friends of the Boundary Waters Wilderness, Minnesota